In late September of 2023, Devon Allman achieved a world-record for performing 50 concerts in the 50 states of America in 49 days. He is just getting warmed up. The modern rock troubadour and torch-bearer for the legacy of the blues has led bands such as Honeytribe, Royal Southern Brotherhood, and The Allman Betts Band in equal step with his prodigious solo output and his own Devon Allman Project, racking up thousands of touring miles and creatively never standing still. A singer-songwriter, guitarist, keyboardist, producer, and record label chief, Allman has earned widespread critical acclaim, as well as top Billboard chart positions and numerous awards, across two decades of musical heritage and invention.

The Devon Allman Project was the backing band for the Allman Family Revivals in 2017 and 2022 and played over 125 headline shows throughout the world in 2018. They've toured almost 20 countries - Playing festivals in Europe and coast to coast in the USA. The Devon Allman Project features the Allman Betts Band drummer, John Lum and ABB bassist, Justin Corgin, plus percussionist David Gomez, and guitarist Jackson Stokes. They play songs of The Allman Brothers and Gregg Allman in their set as well as Devon's fan favorite originals and surprise covers. The band will be releasing two albums in 2024. One live album recorded in Germany and one studio album produced by Grammy Award winner, Tom Hambridge, featuring George Porter Jr., Ivan Neville and Adam Deitch.

"He's an elegant, soulful singer." - Relix
